To Whom it May Concern:

Re: Theodore Sprink

I have known Ted Sprink since the early 1980's. I have had the pleasure to know Ted both professionally and personally and I know Ted to be a good family man. Ted is recognized at the same time in his career for his work ethic, creativity, dedication, and professional accomplishments.

His communication and team-building skills provided success early in his career in the financial services field as he specialized in developing business plans to re-engineer and re-organize struggling corporations. Ted's career advanced to skillfully managing special banking relationships, and later as a senior executive with responsibilities in managing complex corporate and general partnership matters.

Ted has a particular and unique ability to develop new products, services, and business relationships; and to create, implement, and manage complex business plans on a national basis.

I would be pleased to discuss Ted's abilities with you in further detail.

Sincerely,

Everett G. Barry, Jr.
